Australian dot painting symbols. Is it illegal to do dot painting. Australian animal templates for dot painting.

To begin with I showed my students a PowerPoint to first show them where Australia is on a map, and then to give them a little background about Aboriginal Australian art - and more specifically their dot art style. We also watched this video clip. We talked about how aboriginal Australian artwork contained a lot of symbolism and was often very stylized (like the images of animals). They also often used an 'x-ray style' when painting animals in their artwork. I gave each of my tables a packet of animal silhouettes that I printed off from online (small enough that they couldn't even try to trace) and asked them to select an animal that they'd like to draw. Students then tried their best at drawing the animal silhouette (with no additional details) on a piece of brightly colored construction paper that they selected. Once the drawing was completed, they cut out the silhouette and glued it onto a sheet of 9" x 12" black construction paper. Then the dot fun began! :) Each table got a palette of different colored tempera paints and a bunch of wooden scratch sticks. Students dipped the scratch stick into the paint and then went to town dotting their papers (you can probably get a good 3 dots before you have to get more paint on the stick). Some students really got into the project and committed themselves to working hard to finish it, while others got impatient with how long the dotting process was taking. I'd say it was a 60/40 split respectively. I love this lesson though - and those students that understood that with commitment comes great reward. were rewarded greatly with their beautiful results! :) Using the animal templates provided, create colourful mini masterpieces practicing the Aboriginal art of dot painting Time to Make 30 minutes plus drying time per picture Adult Supervision Needed Yes How to Make Print off the six templates of Australian animals using white copier paper. Or, draw the outline freehand of a lizard, turtle etc. directly onto white or coloured card. Make up a palette of different colour acrylic paints. Have a cotton bud for each of the paint colours. Using a cotton bud dipped in the paint, fill in the animal outlines with dot prints. Experiment with different colours. Leave to dry. If you wish to frame your picture, draw a 2cm frame around the picture using a ruler. Then trim this off. Then stick this to a different coloured piece of A4 card using a glue stick, ensuring your picture is centrally positioned. Punch two holes in the top of the frame, thread a piece of ribbon for a hanger. Top Tip Always dot the outline of the animal first, and choose contrasting colours. All you do is take a basic outline of an Aussie animal and using a cotton bud/cotton swab (Q-tip) you dot natural coloured paints into the shape until it is all filled. We usually use reds, browns, oranges, yellows and occasionally green. Hope this has helped" So my daughters and I had a look at the examples that Nicole sent and decided we would give it a try. They both picked kangaroo pictures and you can see the results. Materials: coloring page or template (see below) white paper and printer to print the template, poster paints or tempera paint in 'earthy' tones cotton swabs Instructions: Select your template or coloring page and print it (see below). Dip a cotton swab in the paint and dab it on the coloring page. Use a new cotton swab for each color and use a variety of 'earthy' colours.
